

DIVER, IMPRISONED 69 HOURS, IS DEAD

CITY HAS 67 QUARANTINED RESIDENCES

Sixteen New Cases of Measles
Reported Since Wednesday At 4 P. M.

The City of Circleville has 67 quarantined cases of measles according to an announcement Thursday morning from the health office. Sixteen of the cases have been quarantined since 4 p. m. Wednesday and City Health Officer L. E. Miller announces that there are a number of other cases which will come out in the next few days.

Miller says he thinks a large amount of the measles has come from the High-st school where a number of pupils are reported absent.

He also states that the disease is becoming very widespread in the south end of the city.

One case of scarlet fever is reported in the city.

The county health office reports that outside of a number of cases of measles in the different villages in the county nothing is alarming.

LOCAL BANKS INSTALL GAS

First and Second National Adopt Chemical Warfare Protection.

The First and Second National banks have shown the way to better protection against banditry, by the adoption and installation of a complete system of Chemical Warfare Gas protection against bank hold-up.

The system is the newest of protection thought against the ever increasing hazard of hold-up, and is the development of ten years of concentration on the subject by Colonel B. C. Goss, former chief of the Chemical Warfare Service of the American Expeditionary Forces in the World War.

Installation has been completed, so that it is possible for any employee of the banks to instantly take over control of the bank, no matter how it may be attacked, as to number of attackers or how they may be equipped. Electric Guns capable of generating 900,000 cubic centimeters of this special Hold-up Gas can be released by any employee or officer from his work station, and upon release will instantly incapacitate any group of yeggmen that may be so foolhardy as to attack these banks.

An important feature of this special hold-up Gas is that it is entirely harmless and without after effect to anyone who might be subjected to it. It is harmful only to the bandit, to whom incapacitation for even a short time is fatal. To a bank employee or a customer it is harmless insofar as it incapacitates for only a short time, which, of course, is of no harm to one engaged in other than unlawful pursuit. Hold-up attack is generally timed to catch one but employees in a bank, so that it is improbable that any of our citizens will ever have the pleasure of experiencing this Gas in its incapacitation for a half hour quality, without any harmful or unpleasant after-effect.

BANDIT MUST DIE IN CHAIR

Jury Deliberates Only Four Hours in Case of 24-Year Old Youth.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 30.—Lawrence Dull, 24-year-old Minnabandit will die in the electric chair at Ohio State penitentiary for the slaying of Roy Tish, gasoline station attendant, during an attempted robbery at Fostoria last November.

The youth was found guilty in the first degree by a jury late yesterday in common pleas court here. No offer of a recommendation for mercy was given. The jury was out only four hours.

Dull was unmoved when he heard the verdict that he must die in the electric chair. Dull and a companion, Kenneth Brown, of New Kingsville, were charged with attempting to rob Tish's station. When Tish resisted their commands to hand over the money from the cash register, Dull shot and fatally wounded him, it is alleged. Brown was wounded in the gun-battle and is recovering in a hospital here.

Brown will be arraigned on the same charge as soon as he is released from the hospital. He testified at Dull's trial last Tuesday and laid all blame for the killing on Dull.

TAXICAB HEAD AND EMPLOYE GANG VICTIMS

Found Dead By Police In Fashionable Chicago Residential Area.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—Barney J. Mitchell, treasurer of the Checker taxicab company, and George Jackson, driver, were shot and killed today by unknown assassins who commandeered their cab in the heart of the exclusive Rogers Park section.

Reconstruction of the crime by police indicates Mitchell was slain as a possible outcome of strife that has been noticeable within the organization recently. Jackson, authorities believe, was killed on the "dead men" tell no tales" theory.

Mitchell was found in the rear of the car, on his knees as if imploring his killers to spare him. Five bullets had entered his body.

BULLET IN HEAD
Jackson was slumped over the wheel with one bullet in his head. It was apparent that the man who shot Jackson held the pistol directly against his head. The cab's motor and meter were still running.

It is believed the assassins trailed Mitchell's cab from his office. When they struck the residential district where the killing took place they must have fired a warning shot to stop the cab as a bullet hole was found through the back of it.

Then, the police believe, the gunmen got out and approached the cab. One of the men, it was indicated, stepped up and placed a gun against the back of Jackson's head, ordering him to keep his eyes on the door. The others pulled open the rear door and confronted Mitchell. It was evidence from the position of Mitchell's body that he dropped to his knees to plead for his life. Instead, his assailants fired the fatal shots.

Then, it is indicated, they decided that Jackson had seen too much, and the gunman who had been holding a pistol to his head fired. By this, the police believe that the assassins were known to both Mitchell and Jackson.

Mitchell was re-elected treasurer of the Checker cab company on Jan. 9 after a stormy election. Mitchell and the other officers represent one of the several cliques who have been battling for control of the taxi company ever since its founding.

Mayor Hedges Is On The Right Track

"Mayor Hedges Talks About Law Enforcement," said a headline in last Friday's issue of The Circleville Herald. More than were talk is necessary at this point. Action counts!

And the mayor goes so far as to say that he "sees no need of additional law enforcement in this matter," referring to bootlegging. And he says that he knows gambling is going on in Circleville. But, he hides behind the worn-out excuse that "affidavits should be filed."

Mayor Hedges, however, has given the situation some serious thought. For he came out Saturday with the announcement that he intends to order a shake-up in the police department.

How far he expects to go with his shake-up, he declines to say. He says he will await the re-organization of the civil service commission before showing his hand.

That's good enough, perhaps, but it isn't clarifying the issue. There is always plenty of "buck passing" in any police shake-up. Policemen are inclined to blame their superior officers—the safety director or the mayor, or both. And these superior officers usually blame the policemen.

If the mayor plainly and bluntly demands that his police officers enforce the law, he should see that the officers obey his orders. Has he ever given that order to the police force?

If he has, and they have ignored him, he should waste a moment in taking the only logical step—firing a show-down.

The mayor knows right now whether there are any incompetents on his police force. He knows which of his men are doing their duty and he knows which of his men are shutting their eyes to gambling, bootlegging, slot machines, and the like.

Mayor Hedges says a motion of slot machines is under a ruling of the city general. But the dip of the slot machine is down 99 out of every 100 towns. Mayors in other towns drive them out and keep them out.

Although The Herald believes that Mayor Hedges is a bit inconsistent, arguing one day that he "sees no need for additional law enforcement," and announcing next day that he plans a police shake-up, we congratulate him on his conclusion, after all that something is wrong, and that something should be done about it.

We hope he does it!

New Equipment In Court House

WINDS DELAY GLIDER TRIP

LAKEHURST, N. P., Jan. 30.—(INS)—High winds and snow flurries today forced postponement of the planned glider flight from the naval dirigible Los Angeles.

When weather conditions improve the attempt, the first of its kind, will be made. The glider is to be lifted 2,000 feet into the air by the dirigible and then released. Lieutenant Ralph S. Barnaby will guide the motorless craft on its downward swoop.

O. S. U. TO BE HOST DURING EIGHTEENTH FARM PROGRAM

COLUMBUS, Jan. 30.—The Ohio State University here has cleaned house, made up some extra beds, and hung the latecisting out for the 18th annual Farmers' Week, which is the week of Monday, Feb. 3. The university expects some 7,000 people from the rural homes of Ohio and adjoining states, to visit the campus during the week. Last year there were more than 6,600 visitors, and they came from 22 other states as well as from Ohio.

REDUCE RATES
Railroads have arranged to give reduced rates to Columbus during the week; lists of rooming houses where visitors will find accommodation, have been prepared by the College of Agriculture, dozens of exhibits, demonstrations, speeches and other attractions have been brushed up.

More than 100 speakers are on the program, and they come from nine other states and the District of Columbia as well as from the faculties of the University and the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster.

Nineteen state agricultural organizations will hold their annual state meetings in connection with the Farmers' Week program. The first, and largest, is the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, to which has been devoted the program of the first day of the week, with Arthur M. Hyde, United States Secretary of Agriculture, as the principal speaker of the day.

In addition to the general program for all visitors, each department of the college of agriculture has set up a complete program which will cover practically all of each day, and will offer interest to each member of the farm family. The evenings have been set aside for recreation and entertainment in the form of concerts, lectures, plays and banquets of the various associations.

From furrow to footlights is the story of two groups of rural people who will present dramatic entertainment at the Farmers' Week. One of the highlights of the week's program will be the home talent play by two casts, one from Lima and the other from Franklin, which have already given the plays in local and county dramatic tournaments.

DRAMATIC PROGRAM
More than a score of Ohio counties already have county-wide dramatic organizations recruited from members of the rural and agricultural groups. More than 300 such groups in the state are taking part in the dramatics at the present time, according to R. B. Tom, executive agent in recreation for the university.

The two casts will give plays at Columbus during Farmers' Week at Columbus, Grange, in Franklin, and from the Alexandria Grange, in Lexington. The Alton Grange will present "Goose Money," a play based on rural social life. Four men and four women make up the cast, which was coached by Mrs. James Phillips. The Alexandria Grange

T. A. T. OFFICE TO COLUMBUS

Aviation Center of Central
States May Be In Ohio's
Capital.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 30.—Ohio's capital may be the aviation center of the central states, it was indicated here today following an announcement of T. A. T. Maddux air lines officials that the company's headquarters will be moved to Columbus.

The eastern division's operation offices have consolidated and the move will be effective Saturday, the officials announced. The traffic offices of the eastern division will remain at St. Louis, under the direction of J. W. Brennan, it was stated.

St. Clair D. Welsh, former eastern division superintendent, will be in charge of the offices here to succeed John A. Collings, who recently announced his resignation.

The change will be made as an economy measure as a result of the recent reductions in fares on the passenger air line, it was said. The action was decided upon at a meeting of the board of directors when J. L. Maddux, organizer and president of the Maddux lines, was elected to head the T. A. T. Maddux merger.

MAN HAD BEEN BATTERED BY RIVER 3 DAYS

Heavy Uniform Nearly Torn
From Him By Raging
Flood Torrents.

QUEBEC, QUE., Jan. 30.—Peter Trans, diver who was imprisoned for 69 hours in the icy waters of the river at Riviere Aux Outardes, is dead, according to word which was received here today.

His lifeless body, torn and bruised and with one leg smashed from being battered by the raging river against the cribbing in which he was held captive, was brought to the surface today.

His heavy diver's uniform had been practically torn from his back by the terrific force of the river currents. He had been lodged in the cribbing, erected as a part of a dam, for the Ontario Paper company since 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

DIVERS AID
Trans's body was freed from its under-water grave and brought to the surface by Queneau, Moroney and Lewis Beggs, professional divers, who reached Riviere Aux Outardes by airplane yesterday, and immediately descended into the river.

MONTREAL, QUE., Jan. 30.—(INS)—Peter Trans, "deep sea" diver who for 69 hours was trapped at the bottom of the Outardes river in an isolated section 175 miles from Quebec, was brought to the surface at 7:30 this morning, according to word received here today.

Word that Trans had been brought to the surface was received at 9:20 this morning by Harold Nelson, manager of the Ontario Paper Company, employees of Trans. The diver came in a telegram over the long distance wire which has been in operation at brief intervals to point outward, near the scope. Trans had submerged at 10:30 o'clock Monday. His diving apparatus became entangled and he was unable to come up.

The body of Trans was raised through a pocket in the crib under which Trans had been tightly lodged for practically three days and nights.

Although the telegram did not give the result of the doctor's examination Nelson expressed the opinion that Trans was brought up dead.

WABASH AGAIN ON RAMPAGE

Only Roofs of Many Indiana
Farm Houses Show Above
Flood Waters.

EVANSVILLE, IND., Jan. 30.—With only the roofs of farmhouses showing above the flood waters in many sections of Posey-co, relief forces today attempted to battle the advance of the most alarming flood of Indiana's history.

Ice gorges in the Wabash river are causing the flood waters to spread with unprecedented rapidity across the lowlands south of New Harmony, Ind.

Sections of Illinois also are fighting the water's advance. No complete estimate of the sickness, suffering and damage is available, but aviators carrying food to the territory report the ice-laden waters have already covered a section 15 miles wide.

Near New Harmony 18 families are marooned without food and with little shelter. Ten persons are isolated in a house on Ribeye Island in the Wabash. These, together with a score of sufferers on Cutoff Islands were given food yesterday by aviators who dropped the supplies in small parachutes.

Stories brought here by residents who escaped the flood tide indicated that barns and homes are filled with ice. Farm animals have been frozen in their stalls and have had no food for days.

Many residents are believed to have died in their homes from starvation and exposure, but Red Cross workers are unable to reach the more remote places because of treacherous ice fields and strong currents.

Miss Dovie Gorham of Orient, entered Bliss College, Columbus, last week. Miss Gorham is enrolled in the secretarial department at that college.

If he has, and they have ignored him, he shouldn't waste a moment in taking the only logical step—forcing a show-down.

The mayor knows right now whether there are any incompetents on his police force. He knows which of his men are doing their duty—and he knows which of his men are shutting their eyes to gambling, bootlegging, slot machines, and the like.

Mayor Hedges says operation of slot machines is legal, under a ruling of the attorney-general. But the day of the slot machine is done in 99 out of every 100 Ohio towns. Mayors in other towns drive them out—and keep them out.

Although The Herald believes that Mayor Hedges is a bit inconsistent, arguing one day that he "sees no need for additional law enforcement," and announcing next day that he plans a police shake-up, we congratulate him on his conclusion, after all, that something is wrong and that something should be done about it.

We hope he does it!

T. A. T. OFFICE TO COLUMBUS

Aviation Center of Central
States May Be In Ohio's
Capital.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 30.—Ohio's capital may be the aviation center of the central states, it was indicated here today following an announcement of T. A. T.-Maddux air lines officials that the company's headquarters will be moved to Columbus.

The eastern division's operation offices have consolidated and the move will be effective Saturday, the officials announced. The traffic offices of the eastern division will remain at St. Louis, under the direction of J. W. Brennan, it was stated.

St. Clair D. Welsh, former eastern division superintendent, will be in charge of the offices here to succeed John A. Collings, who recently announced his resignation.

The change will be made as a result of the recent reductions in fares on the passenger air line, it was said.

The action was decided upon at a meeting of the board of directors when J. L. Maddux, organizer and president of the Maddux lines, was elected to head the T. A. T.-Maddux merger.

FRANCO-BRIT QUESTION UP

Controversy Over Naval Limitation By Global Tonnage,
Is In Conference.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The old controversy between France and Great Britain as to whether naval limitation should be effected on the basis of global tonnage or by categories was thrown on the table at the first fully open plenary session of the London Naval arms conference today.

It was discussed by the spokesmen of all five powers at the conference save Japan. Then on the motion of Secretary of State Stimson, it was deferred to steering committee which will consider the question.

Mrs. C. D. Closson and sister, Mrs. Palmer of Continental, O., were visitors in Columbus Thursday.

MAN HAD BEEN BATTERED BY RIVER 3 DAYS

Heavy Uniform Nearly Torn
From Him By Raging
Flood Torrents.

QUEBEC, QUE., Jan. 30.—Peter Trans, diver who was imprisoned for 69 hours in the icy waters of the river at Riviera Aux Outardes, is dead, according to word which was received here today.

His lifeless body, torn and bruised and with one leg smashed from being battered by the raging river against the cribbing in which he was held captive—was brought to the surface today.

His heavy diver's uniform had been practically torn from his back by the terrific force of the river currents. He had been lodged in the cribbing, erected as a part of a dam for the Ontario Paper company since 10:30 o'clock Monday morning.

DIVERS AID

Trans' body was freed from its under-water grave and brought to the surface by Quessel Morency and Levis Began, professional divers, who reached Riviere Aux Outardes by airplane yesterday and immediately descended into the river.

MONTREAL, QUE., Jan. 30.—(INS)—Peter Trans, deep sea diver who for 69 hours was trapped at the bottom of the Outarde river in an isolated section 175 miles from Quebec, was brought to the surface at 7:30 this morning, according to word received here today.

Word that Trans had been brought to the surface was received at 9:20 this morning by Harold Nelson, manager of the Ontario Paper Company, employers of Trans. The information came in a telegram over the lone telegram wire which has been in operation at brief intervals to point outward, near the scene. Trans had submerged at 10:30 o'clock Monday. His diving apparatus became entangled and he was unable to come up.

The body of Trans was raised through a pocket in the crib under which Trans had been tightly lodged for practically three days and nights.

Although the telegram did not give the result of the doctor's examination Nelson expressed the opinion that Trans was brought up dead.

WABASH AGAIN ON RAMPAGE

Only Roofs of Many Indiana
Farm Houses Show Above
Flood Waters.

EVANSVILLE, IND., Jan. 30.—With only the roofs of farmhouses showing above the flood waters in many sections of Posey-co, relief forces today attempted to battle the advance of the most alarming flood of Indiana's history.

Ice gorges in the Wabash river are causing the flood waters to spread with unprecedented rapidity across the lowlands south of New Harmony, Ind.

Sections of Illinois also are fighting the water's advance.

No complete estimate of the sickness, suffering and damage is available, but aviators carrying food to the territory report the ice-laden waters have already covered a section 15 miles wide.

Near New Harmony 18 families are marooned without food and with little shelter. Ten persons are isolated in a house on Ribevre Island in the Wabash. These, together with a score of sufferers on Cutoff Islands were given food yesterday by aviators who dropped the supplies in small parachutes.

Stories brought here by residents who escaped the flood tide indicated that barns and homes are filled with ice. Farm animals have been frozen in their stalls and have had no food for days.

Many residents are believed to have died in their homes from starvation and exposure, but Red Cross workers are unable to reach the more remote places because of treacherous ice fields and strong currents.

Miss Dovie Gorham of Orient, entered Bliss College, Columbus, last week. Miss Gorham is enrolled in the secretarial department at that college.

GOV. COOPER ASKS DAIRY FARM HELP

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29—Gov. Cooper today appeals to Ohioans to eat more butter and other Ohio dairy products as an aid to the dairy industry of the state, which, he declared, faces severe losses this year.

The appeal followed a report of Agricultural director Perry L. Green, stating that overproduction during the past summer and fall had resulted in an abnormal surplus of approximately 40,000,000 pounds of butter. Another reason for the tremendous supply on hand, the report stated, is the possible underconsumption during the past few months.

"Butter is the most healthful of foods," Director Green's report stated. "And there is absolutely no substitute for it. It contains every element that tends to bring about good health. With prices as low as they are at the present time, and with the arrangement that is current now for the purchase of butter on a very low margin of profit, there can hardly be any reason why the farmer himself should not help to advertise his own product by at least consuming it."

"The life of the cream producing and the butter making industry in Ohio at this time is in very great danger of extremely great economic losses, and there must be a concerted action on the part of the producer, the distributor, the manufacturer and the retailer in order that all the interests may be conserved to the very best advantage."

"Producers must cooperate with distributors and manufacturers at this time."

There's no regular war going on now; but those with a taste for war, the wet-and-dry war does well enough.

Having had all this publicity about the $2,000,000 worth of clothes and jewelry she travels with, Ganna Walska d'Eighahorn Frankel Cochran McCormick ought to get some pretty good concert engagements.

APOLOGIES DUE TO WHAT WAS 'WEED'

Farmers Slander Sweet Clover Before They Learn Its Value

Farmers of Ohio and other states really owe an apology to sweet clover. For years they slandered it as a weed, and a nuisance, while they struggled to eradicate it from their farms. Now they are finding it one of the most valuable legumes available for their crop rotations. Because the sweet clover grows persistently in practically any kind of soil—sand, clay, impoverished, or rich—just so it contains lime, the great majority of agriculturists concluded it must be a weed, because no crop of any value would grow under such conditions and at the same time resist drought, poor drainage, and disease.

"Fifteen years ago one would have traveled far to find 1000 acres of sweet clover sown as a crop in Ohio. Today a single county has 30,000 acres and the entire state over 300,000 acres," says a bulletin on sweet clover written by Dr. C. J. Willard of the farm crops department of the Ohio State University. The bulletin was revised this month and is issued by the Agricultural Extension Service of the university.

In it Dr. Willard points out that sweet clover is valuable not only because it grows anywhere, if lime is present in the soil, but because it produces enormous yields of hay and pasture and a crop of it is equal to an application of 20 tons of farm manure, in improvement of the soil. Alfalfa is the only competitor of sweet clover when it comes to yields of hay and pasture.

More corn was hogged down, grazed or used for forage, in Ohio and in the United States, during 1929 than during 1928, by more than 1 per cent of the acreage.

FOREIGN PROSPECT OFFERS NO CHEER

Butter Market Abroad Weak As That in U. S., Is Spec. ialists Report

Like charity, improvement in the market for butter and other dairy products will have to start at home, according to investigations which have been made by the rural economics department of the Ohio State University, which sees little encouragement in the present situation abroad, for expecting a higher world price of butter.

The university economists report that European butter markets during December, 1929, were almost as weak as that of the United States. Production in Germany has increased, consumption has fallen off there, and imports have decreased slightly. Consumption in Great Britain has also fallen off. Production of butter in New Zealand and Australia is well ahead of that of last year and both countries are now in the middle of their production season. Poor business conditions in both Great Britain and Germany render unlikely any improvement in the butter market in those countries.

In this country the butter market might be improved through an increased consumption of butter and dairy products by both farm and city people, or through a return to more nearly normal business conditions in the cities, where the threat of an industrial depression is keeping down the demand for dairy products.

On the individual farms, greater consumption of butter and milk, weeding out boarder cows and old cows while the prices for beef are high, selling more calves for veal during winter and spring months, breeding cows for freshening during the fall and winter months, and reduction of production costs by more efficient management of the cows left in the herd, are the measures recommended for improving the situation.

BEES MAKE MONEY FOR FRUIT GROWER

While Gathering Honey They Increase Yields From Trees In Orchard

Without making a nickel's worth of honey, bees can earn astonishingly large profits for their owner, if the owner is also an orchardist. This was demonstrated during the past year by two demonstrations in orchard pollenization by bees, carried on under the supervision of Virgil N. Arga, extension specialist in bee-keeping for the Ohio State University.

One of the demonstration was made in the W. W. Farnsworth orchard at Waterville. The owner rented 104 colonies of bees and established them in the orchard at the rate of one colony to each acre of bearing trees. Pollenization by the bees was held responsible for increasing the yield of a four-acre plot of self-sterile Damson plums, by 200 bushels over its best previous yield, in spite of a poor season. The extra 200 bushels of plums sold at $2 a bushel.

The Ohio Orchard Company at Millford Center rented 20 colonies of bees which were placed in two blocks of Minkler apple trees, notoriously "poor setting." Accheck was obtained by placing the bees at one end of a very long, narrow strip of the trees. The results showed that 47 trees accessible to the bees yielded a total of 261.5 bushels of apples, or 5.56 bushels to the tree, while 35 trees which the bees did not reach, produced only 126.5 bushels or 3.61 bushels to the tree.

In both orchards bouquets of the other varieties of the fruit from which pollen was to be taken were placed near the hives. The bees distributed pollen from these bouquets as they worked on the growing trees. Research in to the possibilities of the system is to be carried further this year.

Broadleaved evergreens of several varieties have shown an increasing popularity among landscape workers, during the past several years.

The Toughest Old Cough

Can Now Be Stopped

Lingering coughs—the kind that hang on and hang on and rob a man of his sleep—the kind that makes him peevish and all worn out.

Those are the breed of coughs that prove that common cough syrups are about as useful as a bottle of ginger pop.

The quickest and surest way to get rid of a persistent cough is to take a teaspoonful of Broncholine Emulsion four times a day.

It's made to stop the old-timers—the tough ones—and it does it without any loss of time.

And remember, there is no chloroform—no sugar—no dope in this grand cough medicine. It's a prescription for stubborn coughs, and that's the kind it speedily conquers.

For ordinary coughs one or two doses is usually enough. Hamilton & Ryan and dealers everywhere can supply you.—Adv.

Why Fat Men Stay Fat

"The trouble with me, and I guess this applies to 99% of the men who are putting on weight, I didn't have the energy or 'pep' to keep it off. Lost all interest in any healthy activity and just lazed around accumulating the old pounds until I got that 'Kruschen feeling.'"

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver working in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

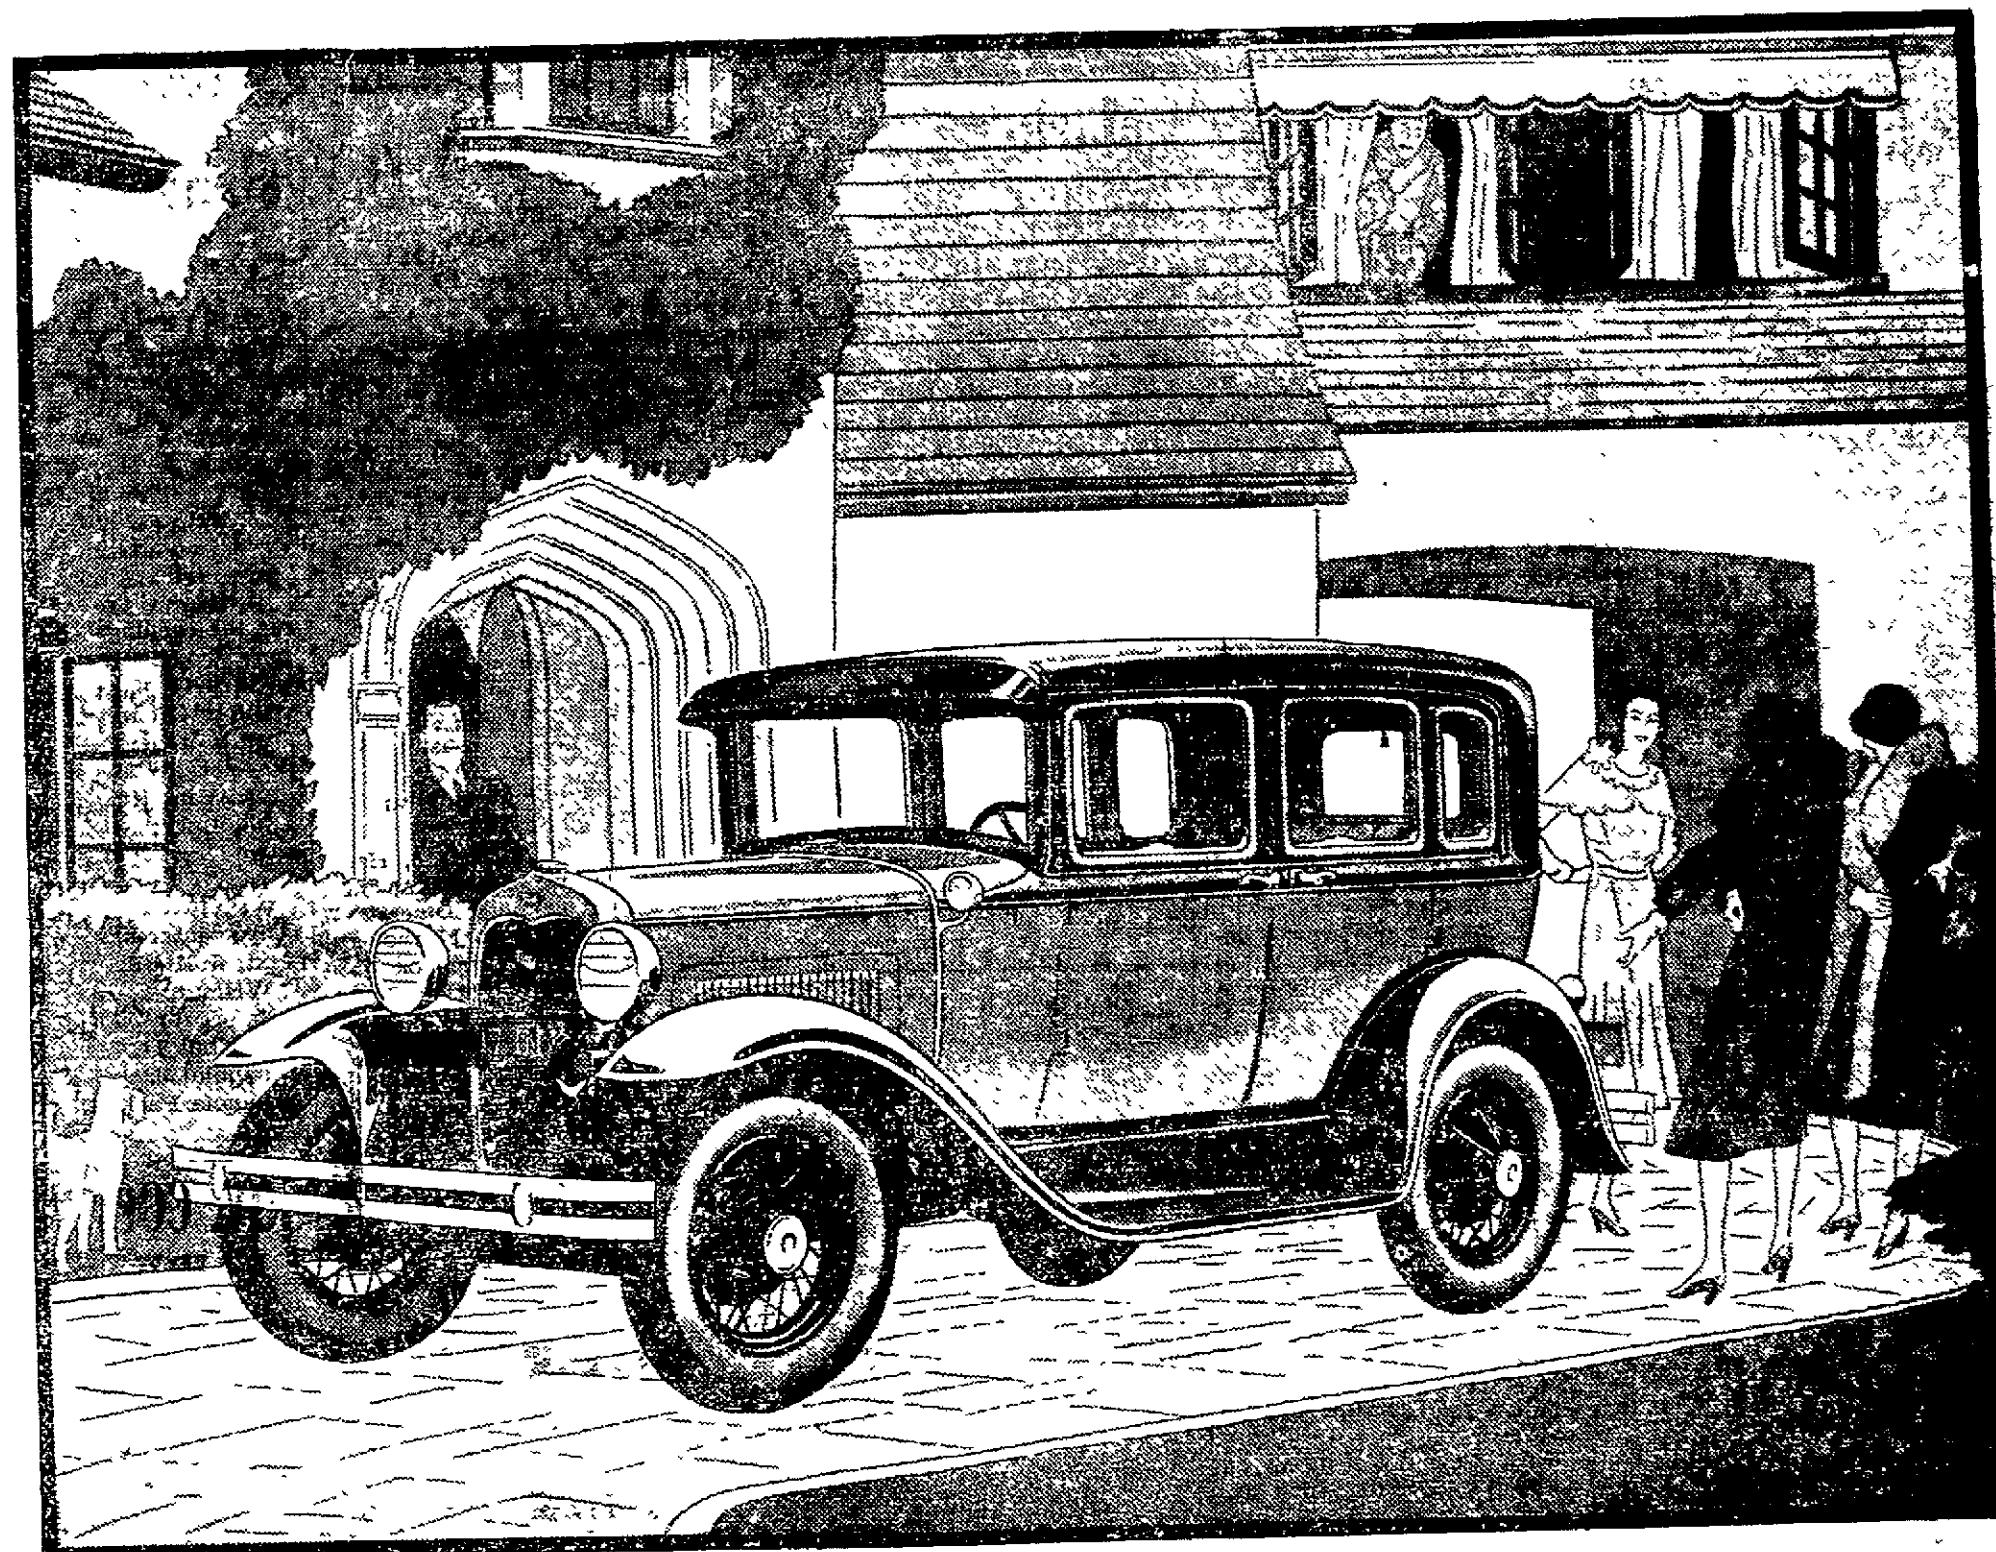

Then watch the pounds slide off! Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Epsum... of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water tomorrow morning and every morning—and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at Hamilton & Ryan's or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.—Adv.

FOREIGN PROSPECT OFFERS NO CHEER

Butter Market Abroad Weak As That in U. S., Is Spec. ialists Report

Like charity, improvement in the market for butter and other dairy products will have to start at home, according to investigations which have been made by the rural economics department of the Ohio State University, which sees little encouragement in the present situation abroad, for expecting a higher world price of butter.

The university economists report that European butter markets during December, 1929, were almost as weak as that of the United States. Production in Germany has increased, consumption has fallen off there, and imports have decreased slightly. Consumption in Great Britain has also fallen off. Production of butter in New Zealand and Australia is well ahead of that of last year and both countries are now in the middle of their production season. Poor business conditions in both Great Britain and Germany render unlikely any improvement in the butter market in those countries.

In this country the butter market might be improved through an increased consumption of butter and dairy products by both farm and city people, or through a return to more nearly normal business conditions in the cities, where the threat of an industrial depression is keeping down the demand for dairy products.

On the individual farms, greater consumption of butter and milk, weeding out boarder cows and old cows while the prices for beef are high, selling more calves for veal during winter and spring months, breeding cows for freshening during the fall and winter months, and reduction of production costs by more efficient management of the cows left in the herds, are the measures recommended for improving the situation.

TALL BUILDING

Alister MacDonald, distinguished architect and son of the British prime minister, visiting the United States, refused to go into ecstasies over our metropolis. New York, he says, "is an awesome place, with skyscrapers blotting out the light and creating transportation problems." He is glad to find that New York is not America.

He is a little worried, though, about our other cities, with their rivalry of metropolitan architecture. "I believe," he says, "that in time your skyscrapers are going to blot out humanity, if you're not careful. It's time you're erecting some low buildings."

He might have added that the structure which by the common judgment of the world is considered most beautiful and perfect, the Parthenon at Athens, was a comparatively low building of one story.

It's as futile trying to reach heaven with Towers of Babel in America as it was of old on the plains of Shinar.

An occasional skyscraper is all right. It makes a good landmark and gives citizens something to brag about, and people in the upper stories have a fine view. But when many skyscrapers are built, even the view is lost. All that remains is a picturesque skyline visible from the suburbs.

Even a skyscraper city like New York is probably all right—as long as it remains a unique spectacle. But why should other cities try to imitate it, when by spreading out they can avoid its inconveniences, discomforts and traffic problems?

FLYING LECTURERS

There are doctors in Central and South America who will not be able to attend the second annual congress of the Pan-American Medical Association. A "flying clinic" is to visit many of these men in their various communities before the convention begins on Jan. 30.

Several physicians and surgeons from this country have embarked upon this 13-day airplane trip during which they will visit, lecture and give demonstrations in 11 Central and South American countries. They will call at 18 different places and will cover a distance that would have required months to visit with the old means of travel.

This may mark a new development in convention procedure. Hereafter more flying squads may be sent out to people who cannot attend the sessions but who are eager to hear and see in their own communities the same speeches and demonstrations that are offered to the assembled delegates.

It must not be carried too far, however. Convention-seeking cities will not be pleased if airplane hops do away with conventions entirely.

JUST LIKE A PARENT

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

CHAPTER XXXIII.

THAT NIGHT—the night she was leaving Serena after Pauline and Dave had said good night and it was oh, so quiet, Enid went to her hand-bag which was carefully packed, reached down under her slippers and dressing-gown and took out her leather writing-case.

She put a log on the fire and stirred it up. Then she drew the table up by the fire and sat down to write.

She never faltered. It was as if a power were flowing through her veins and arteries, muscles and nerves and directing her hand to form the letters of the words which she was writing. Her hand did not even tremble.

"Dear Ned:

I cannot go on any longer without telling you something which I have been meaning and trying to for months. You will understand how difficult it has been for me when you know what it is.

"Neddie—I have failed you. I have been unfaithful to you, and the baby which I am going to have is not yours. I was going to wait to tell you after it was born, but now I feel that it would not be fair to you or to the baby or its father.

"I am not a wanton woman—once and once only I sinned and I sinned because I loved him very deeply. I have loved you, Neddie, but I love him more and when the baby is born I shall go to him.

"I do not ask your forgiveness—that would be impossible. Do what you consider the most dignified thing in regard to divorcing me. I shall agree to anything which you suggest.

"Neddie, you have been so good to me. It may sound strange here, but I am grateful to you for the happy years you have given me and it has been a great sorrow to me—a torturing grief that such a thing should have happened to us. It was simply stronger than I was, Neddie, or my love for you.

"Perhaps you may not understand, but in this terrible trial I am inflicting on you I wish that I might comfort you. That is my feeling. You have been everything that a husband should be to a woman and I look back on our years together with great tenderness.

"It was not Dick's fault and it was not mine.

"I tried to feel too bitterly towards Dick and me. We tried to conquer it but failed. Don't hate us, Neddie. Pity us. Perhaps one day you will understand.

"Good-bye, Neddie. God bless you.

She felt no bitterness about the lie before her marriage. Her sin had been greater than his.

Tears fell on the letter as she wrote. She thought that some of the words were blurred. Quickly she folded it and sealed it in an envelope.

For a few moments she sat by the fire, weeping silently. She had done it—thank God. But how awful to take the love of your husband—the man you have lived with for years—and kill it with a few words on a sheet of paper. Poor Neddie!

are going with me. We shall take an apartment until the time comes for me to go to the hospital. Dr. Gibbons, whom you know, will take care of me.

"I am very well—but oh, darling, if I could only feel your arms around me or just sit by you with my hand in yours—if I could only be in the same room with you—or hear your voice on the telephone.

"I know you are thinking of me, praying for me. I am not afraid—but if you are only going to be with me.

"I shall come back to Serena when our baby is born. We shall wait for you here—our baby and I—oh, Dick, my love.

"Hold me close in your heart and come to me. Come to me, dearest, as soon as you can. Come to women who had braved great danger and hardships to find the land of their dreams.

Your ENID."

Where were they going? Dave

"Now, Mrs. Grier," Dr. Gibbons said, with his strong hand holding hers and bending down, looking at her with those kind gray eyes, "you just go right home and don't worry. You're in fine condition, and just remember that you are going to have the most beautiful baby that was ever born. And don't listen to a lot of things old women will tell you. You ask me. Don't hesitate to call on me at any time. From now on I am entirely at your disposal."

Enid left his office with a smile on her face and as she joined Pauline and Dave in the car she said:

"He's perfectly lovely and I feel so differently since I have seen him."

She laid down her pen and her face fell on her arms on the table. She sealed the letter and held it close to her face for a moment. Then she put the two letters in the inside pocket of her handbag. She would mail them herself when she reached San Francisco.

Enid did not wake up once during the night—she knew nothing until the gong rang for breakfast.

Today—today she was going to San Francisco. Another step in her nine months' journey. When would it end?

Wonderful how well she had stood the trip. It was over and there they were in the St. Francis again and Dave registering their names. The last time. She could see Dick striding across the lobby pushing that load of baggage off his forehead. Dick—where was he now?

She walked to the mail-box near the desk and dropped them in. Oh, Ned, the executioner who pulls the switch must feel like that—poor, dear Ned. But she had to do it.

The next morning Enid said: "Shall we go to an agent today and see about an apartment?" "I think you'd better go to see Dr. Gibbons first, dear," Pauline suggested.

must be taking them for a drive. Now they were stopping in front of the most charming little Spanish house with roses on each side of the stone walk.

"Come in for a moment, dear," Pauline said, helping Enid out of the car.

"Who lives here?" I would rather not see any strangers. But Pauline was at the door now.

"How lovely," said Enid as she entered.

"Well, this is where we're going to live until it's time for you to go to the hospital."

"But when and how did you arrange that?" gasped Enid sitting down in a big chair and taking off her hat.

"The George Stevenses are going abroad for three months and we rented it from them—their old Chinese cook and maids complete."

Enid could say nothing. If they only knew would they love her so? Why—what would she do about telling them? She suddenly grew weary at the thought of it. She could decide nothing further. That would just have to wait. Dick would help her when he came. Yes—too tired to cope with anything else—perhaps it wasn't honorable—but so tired. Dick would take charge of that. He'd know how to do it. Just now—no—

AT THE CLIFTONA

Marion Davies marches right into new triumphs in her first all-talking feature, "Marianne," which opens at the Cliftona Theatre as a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer offering.

Playing her entire role in French and dialect dialogue, the vivacious comedienne negotiates an exceptionally difficult characterization and finds time to sing and dance and clown in the lighter moments of the picture.

The new talkie is crammed full of timely musical hits and Robert Z. Leonard, who directed, has surrounded his star with such supporting players as Cliff (Ukele Ike) Edwards, Benny Rubin, Robert Edeson, Lawrence Gray, George Baxter, and others of note.

Action plus adventure, terrors and perils of such convincing brightness that audiences who beheld them were swept into transports of excitement, will be projected on the screen at the Cliftona Theatre Friday with the showing of Paramount's epic picture of the wild African Sudan country—"The Four Feathers."

Here is "a" picture—and there is not a word of dialog in its entire footage. This alone, in a day when talkers are rapidly establishing a new world, is ample recommendation for your seeing it twice or three times. It is a big picture—one which is too big even for dialog. But it should be said right here that the excellent musical score, composed by Wm. Frederick Peters, which accompanies the picture is a delightful supplement to the visual interest which the film arouses.

The story is based on the famous novel of British soldier life in the Sudan, "The Four Feathers" written by A. E. W. Mason and often referred to as the "British bible of courage."

Richard Arlen, a young officer, is branded as a coward by his comrades. He swears he will "come back" and he does. How the youth conquers the stigma of cowardice forms the theme for the story which carries him and his three comrades, Clive Brooks, William Powell and Theodor von Eltz, through the kind of he-man adventures we have all seen in "Beau Geste," and then some.

Merian C. Cooper and Ernest B. Schoedsack, the two wonder-men of picturedom, whose roving cameras were responsible for the remarkable adventure films, "Chang" and "Grass," spent nearly two years in Africa, taking the "shots" which constitute "The Four Feathers" and for which they faced unbelievable dangers.

Form Right Habits in Youth

Habit Is the Basis of Character. Agrees Authority. So Be Sure Children Have Good Ones.

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.
U. S. Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

"CHARACTER is simply habit long continued," said Plutarch, that wise philosopher of the ancient Greeks. There is no doubt but he was right. Our daily habits have much to do in moulding character.

You cannot go far in this world without a good character. To this end it is essential that we form good habits in our earliest youth. Every parent is responsible for the habits acquired by the child.

It may take vigilance, but it is far better to see that your child forms good habits than to permit bad habits which will curse his future. There are plenty of habits formed in youth that are a menace to future good health. Chief of these are the habits of eating. Some persons have digestive organs which seem capable of handling almost anything that falls short of rocks and hardware. They appear to be able to eat anything and suffer no ill effects.

I consider it unwise to treat an stomach, so matter how willing it may be, to such hardships. Children are apt to bolt their food, to be notional about what they eat and to refuse to eat what is good for them. If you are guardian of such a child, you must be firm in helping him to form right habits of eating.

It is important to prevent a child from forming a habit of eating too much sugar, or too much salt, or too much meat, or too much of anything. He must have a balanced diet, and the more variety of food he takes the better. Eternal vigilance must be yours in the habit-forming stage of his career.

We all discover, some time, that some one has had a bad cold. Perhaps we have formed a great liking for pork, pastry, candy, or one of a hundred different things. We may find that something does not agree with us, something perhaps that has stood us in good stead for years past. Now is the time that we can give evidence of real character by changing our eating habits.

We find that we feel better, and are better, by reducing the consumption of whatever has been determined upon as destructive of our welfare.

There can be no doubt that certain foodstuffs are poisonous to some people. There is no use trying to overcome the effects. You just have to eliminate all or part of such a food. Tobacco and alcohol are in the same category. If one of them does you harm and produces ill effects in your body and brain, you just cannot afford to indulge in it.

Form good sleeping habits. Most people need eight hours of good sleep every night in the week. "Day in and day out." Some get along on five, but the chances are that the person who does not get enough sleep will lessen his body resistance to disease. It is something to think about.

Is it your good habit to take a vigorous walk each day, if you are not exercising your body some other way? That is also most essential to your health.

THAT the resulting satisfaction has meant increased business. THAT they always sell the best at the price. THAT their merchandise reflects a credit to their store. ## For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

TALL BUILDING
Alister MacDonald, distinguished architect and son of the British prime minister, visiting the United States, refused to go into ecstasies over our metropolis. New York, he says, "is an awesome place, with skyscrapers blotting out the light and creating transportation problems." He is glad to find that New York is not America.

He is a little worried, though, about our other cities, with their rivalry of metropolitan architecture. "I believe," he says, "that in time your skyscrapers are going to blot out humanity, if you're not careful. It's time you're erecting some low buildings."

He might have added that the structure which by the common judgment of the world is considered most beautiful and perfect, the Parthenon at Athens, was a comparatively low building of one story. It's as futile trying to reach heaven with Towers of Babel in America as it was of old on the plains of Shinar.

An occasional skyscraper is all right. It makes a good landmark and gives citizens something to brag about, and people in the upper stories have a fine view. But when many skyscrapers are built, even the view is lost. All that remains is a picturesque skyline visible from the suburbs.

Even a skyscraper city like New York is probably all right—as long as it remains a unique spectacle. But why should other cities try to imitate it, when by spreading out they can avoid its inconveniences, discomforts and traffic problems?

FLYING LECTURERS
There are doctors in Central and South America who will not be able to attend the second annual congress of the Pan-American Medical Association. A "flying clinic" is to visit many of these men in their various communities before the convention begins on Jan. 30.

Several physicians and surgeons from this country have embarked upon this 13-day airplane trip during which they will visit, lecture and give demonstrations in 11 Central and South American countries. They will call at 18 different places and will cover a distance that would have required months to visit with the old means of travel.

This may mark a new development in convention procedure. Hereafter more flying squads may be sent out to people who cannot attend the sessions but who are eager to hear and see in their own communities the same speeches and demonstrations that are offered to the assembled delegates.

It must not be carried too far, however. Convention-seeking cities will not be pleased if airplane hops do away with conventions entirely.

"STORM-TOSSED"

BY HELEN SCHERMERHORN YOUNG

CHAPTER XXXIII.
THAT NIGHT—the night she was leaving Serena after Pauline and Dave had said good night and it was oh, so quiet, Enid went to her hand-bag which was carefully packed, reached down under her slippers and dressing-gown and took out her leather writing-case.

She put a log on the fire and stirred it up. Then she drew the table up by the fire and sat down to write.

She never faltered. It was as if a power were flowing through her veins and arteries, muscles and nerves and directing her hand to form the letters of the words which she was writing. Her hand did not even tremble.

"Dear Ned:
I cannot go on any longer without telling you something which I have been meaning and trying to for months. You will understand how difficult it has been for me when you know what it is.

"Neddie—I have failed you. I have been unfaithful to you, and the baby which I am going to have is not yours. I was going to wait to tell you after it was born, but now I feel that it would not be fair to you or to the baby or its father.

"I am not a wanton woman—once and once only I sinned and I sinned because I loved him very deeply. I have loved you, Neddie, but I love him more and when the baby is born I shall go to him.

"I do not ask your forgiveness—that would be impossible. Do what you consider the most dignified thing in regard to divorcing me. I shall agree to anything which you suggest.

"Neddie, you have been so good to me. It may sound strange here, but I am grateful to you for the happy years you have given me and it has been a great sorrow to me—a torturing grief that such a thing should have happened to us. It was simply stronger than I was, Neddie, or my love for you.

"Perhaps you may not understand, but in this terrible trial I am inflicting on you I wish that I might comfort you. That is my feeling. You have been everything that a husband should be to a woman and I look back on our years together with great tenderness.

are going with me. We shall take an apartment until the time comes for me to go to the hospital. Dr. Gibbons, whom you know, will take care of me.

"I am very well—but oh, darling, if I could only feel your arms around me or just sit by you with my hand in yours—if I could only be in the same room with you—or hear your voice on the telephone.

"I know you are thinking of me, praying for me. I am not afraid—but if you were only going to be with me.

"I shall come back to Serena when our baby is born. We shall wait for you here—our baby and I—oh, Dick, my love.

Hold me close in your heart and come to me. Come to me, dearest, as soon as you can. Come to me.

Your ENID."

Where were they going? Dave

must be taking them for a drive. Now they were stopping in front of the most charming little Spanish house with roses on each side of the stone walk.

"Come in for a moment, dear," Pauline said, helping Enid out of the car.

"Who lives here?—I would rather not see any strangers." But Pauline was at the door now.

"How lovely," said Enid as she entered.

"Well, this is where we're going to live until it's time for you to go to the hospital."

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

THIS AND THAT

THE OAKS
By W. M. Reld
The English hold in high esteem the oak tree. The Druids carried on the religious rites in its shade. Poets have written odes to it. In one of McGuffey's Readers is a "Song to The Oak" whose refrain is—

"Then here's to the oak, the brave old oak
Who has stood in the green-wood long."

You have a Doctor's Word for this Laxative

IN 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he treated many cases of constipation. He soon saw the harm in common purges and began to seek something better. Out of his experience was born a famous prescription now in wide use.

This prescription was written thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. Children like its pleasant taste. Older people like it because it doesn't gripe or cause discomfort. It is a mixture of fresh herbs and other pure ingredients, thoroughly effective for the most robust of men. Stimulates the normal muscular action of the bowels. So its use will not become a habit. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, biliousness, feverishness, or no energy, poor appetite, etc., are relieved by Dr. Caldwell's prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use.

Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. All drug stores have the generous bottles. The product never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original formula. So you can take it with confidence or give it to the youngest child.

Here's strength and renown to his broadgreen crown
And his fifty arms so strong."
But the English had but one oak to write about. In the U.S. we have at least 50 kinds of oak trees. Here in Pickaway-co we may count 12 varieties. This territory was densely wooded with the hardwoods and the oaks were in the vast majority in the woods.

The oaks are divided into two groups, the white oak group and the black oak group. There are several methods of distinguishing the two groups. The lighter colored bark distinguishes the white oaks from the others. The white oak matures its acorns annually, while the black oaks take two years to ripen theirs. The first year after blooming they are to be seen as not much larger than a pin head clinging closely to the putting branch. The second year they grow into maturity. The tree may have both sizes on the same year.

By far the most important and valuable is the white oak group. It contributes the hardest, strongest and most durable lumber in the forests. The early settler chose these trees for his primitive cabin, split it into puncheons for his floors, and rived it into clapboards for his roof.

The white oak group has six varieties in this locality: the white oak, whose wood is par excellence and the standard by which all the others is measured. A close relative is the post oak whose wood is the choice of basket makers for their wares. Right now it can be identified by the leaves which cling to the branches all winter. The stand on the Scioto trail forest is composed mostly of this variety.

Swamp white oak is a somewhat rarer variety found along upland streams and edges of swamps. It has almost entirely disappeared. The largest of the American oaks is the bur oak, but its wood is coarser than others of this group, its wood decaying soon when in contact with the ground. The largest specimen I ever saw stands in the center of the township line road between Pickaway and Saltercreeks. It is seven feet in diameter or four feet above ground.

The chestnut oak or Fanbark oak grows only in the southeastern part of the county on that part that is least glaciated. At no time its bark furnished the material for the Roth tannery that flourished in Circleville years ago. The tree was cut down in the spring and early summer while the sap was up and the bark peeled easily. The bark was removed in "4 foot strips" and ordered up till it dried out when it was hauled to the tannery where it was ground up for use in the tanning tanks. It has a large percent of tannic acid which was essential in tanning of first class leather. Since the disappearance of this tree, and also the fir of the east and north, the tanners must depend on the immense forests of quebracho wood in South America.

A closely related tree to the Chestnut oak is the Sweet Oak found principally in this county. It was once plentiful in the Darby Plains. Along the slopes of the streams are to be found a few specimen remaining. Its acorns are the most edible of all the oaks. The fruit is small, dark brown in color with yellow streaks. They were a favorite article of diet with the now extinct wild pigeon and turkey. It is sometimes called Pigeon Oak and Turkey Oak for that reason. The leaves of the oak resemble those of the chestnut oak but much broader and is probably a hybrid of the white oak and chestnut oak.

The Black Oak group numbers six varieties in this locality. The group takes its name from the one variety that heads the group the Black Oak. It is one of the largest of American oaks. Its bark is black on the outside but distinctly yellow on the inside. The leaves are very large, deeply-lobed and have the characteristic bristle tip of all this group. In the fall the leaves turn a rusty brown.

The Red Oak is also a very large stately tree with a grayish bark divided into wide furrows. Its leaves turn red giving it its name.

The showiest oak of all is the Scarlet Oak which stands out in the autumn forest with its scarlet and crimson leaves. The bark of this tree is grayish-brown becoming almost black near the base. Dead limbs persist on the lower trunk.

The Pin Oak gets its name from the pin-like twigs which are thickly set along branches. It can further be identified by its straight unbranched trunk and the horizontal branches along the middle of the trunk.

The Laurel Oak is the most unique of all the oaks. Many persons who are not familiar with the trees will refuse to believe it is an oak till they are shown the acorns it bears. The leaves resemble the laurel in their shape and color. The early settlers saw pure Laurel and so called it Laurel Oak. It was converted into clapboards and pickets. This oak hybridizes easily with other oaks of this group. One of its famous hybrids is the Leas Oak in Cincinnati. Other specimens are to be found in southwestern Ohio.

The most worthless of all the oaks is the Black-jack Oak that once covered that part of Pickaway-co, known as the Barrens, and is mostly known as the Barren Oak. Its leaves are somewhat the shape of the others of the Black Oak group but much wider at the apex. The tree is rather scrubby, its wood water soaks easily and unless very dry will not readily burn as fuel.

Very few of the stately oaks are left to us. To the older residents they are but a memory. To the younger generation they are something to be imagined that existed before their time.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ills and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

TIGERS HAVE ONE OF YEAR'S BEST WORKOUTS WEDNESDAY

After one of their best workouts of the season at the high school Wednesday evening, the Tiger varsity pronounced itself ready for the onslaughts of one of the best teams in the Central Buckeye league, Bexley. The game will be played in the local gymnasium Friday evening and if good practice sessions mean anything, the Bexley crew is going to face a team that will look quite different than it did against Grandview last Friday, in one of the most disappointing games of the current season.

Passing like they haven't passed this year, shooting baskets from every angle and displaying fine teamwork with each member encouraging his mate, the Red and Black showed the stuff that all good basketball teams are made of in their lengthy Wednesday evening workout.

SHORT SESSION THURSDAY
A light play drill is on the books for this evening. Every member of the squad is in excellent condition and with these factors in their favor, the Tigers will enter the Bexley game, with their hearts and minds set on just one thing, VICTORY.

The team is expected to lineup just as it has since the Chillicothe game, with Nickerson and White at the forwards, Russell at center, and Davis and Clark at guards.

The boys' game is not the only feature of the evening for Miss Rains' girls take on a worthy opponent in quest of another victory. The opponent is none other than the Lancaster lassies and advance reports say that Lancaster will truly test the strength of the so-far undefeated Tigerette sextet.

SCRAMBLE FOR JOBS
Four positions on the varsity are certain with Fitzpatrick and Eldridge at forwards and Captain Peters and Hider at centers.

But the guard posts are very unsettled. Last week Editt and Bette started at the defensive posts with Riegel substituting early in the game. The scramble for the guard jobs has been decidedly hot all through the week with not even the girls themselves certain who will get the call.

The reserve game between the local Reserves and the Bexley Reserves was cancelled by Principal Gephart Wednesday.

The girls' game will start at 7:15.

Jake Snouffer will be the referee.

BOMBS FLY IN CHICAGO AREA

Sixth Missile In Day Injures 13 and Does Over $100,000 Damage.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—The sixth bomb in 24 hours burst here today with a roar heard for miles, injured 13 persons and caused damage estimated at more than $100,000.

The injured were cut by flying glass and showering debris; others were hurled to the ground by the force of the explosion.

So powerful was the blast that the two-story grocery of John Culotta, at whom the blast was aimed, flew into the air and settled with a terrific crash. No one was in the building at the time. The bomb was the most powerful exploded in Chicago in years.

Extortionists were blamed by police for the attack. Culotta had received five letters from Black Hand workers demanding $5,000. He ignored the demands and notified police who maintained a guard over the grocery yesterday.

The building was wrecked by a mysterious fire last December and was later repaired. Culotta blamed extortionists for that attack.

PROMISE ACTION IN C. A. C. GAMES THURSDAY EVENING

Brotherhood vs. Kingston.
Grant's Clouds vs. Gordon Tires.
C. A. C. vs. Lancaster.

That's the lineup for the Circleville Athletic Club gymnasium Thursday evening, and what a lot of court contests the three should make.

The first is scheduled to start at 7:15 p. m. when Joe Noecker's Lutherans try to get into the court with nothing but intentions of drubbing the Kingston Merchants and drubbing them soundly. The Lutherans are about ready for a mighty good game for their last few have been only ordinary and with Marvin Rhodes failing to hit the net in his usual sensational style, the Brotherhood quintet has been very heavily pressed for victory. But that good game is just about ready to come out and tonight might be that particular time.

The Kingston club will furnish plenty of opposition.

GORDONS, CLOUDS
The next game of the evening will introduce the Gordon Tires in one corner and the Grant Flying Clouds in the other. But speaking of corners these two teams won't be lingering in corners very long for a battle that is liable to see more than one stalwart seek the restfulness of the safe sidelines is expected to be the result of this contest. When the excitement of this battle wears off there is a question whether the spectators will have much steam left for the next game.

The final fray will see the C. A. C. tussling with the Lancaster Hocking Glass quintet and although a battle is expected it is highly possible the Clubmen will cop their victory.

The first game starts at 7:15 with the Lutherans and Kingston and from that time on nothing but action will be the course of the evening.

MUHLENBERG

John Fullen, a graduate of last year and a very well known and liked young man of our community, met with a bad accident when his shot gun exploded and badly tore his hands. One finger was entirely lost.

There are several cases of mumps and numerous cases of colds. One case of diphtheria has been reported in the township. Our attendance in lower grades therefore has been ragged.

The Muhlenberg girls sure did show themselves Friday night when they held the Walnut girls team to a low score and tied for the game.

The second boys showed good form of ball winning by large score.

GOELLER'S QUINT BEATS METHODISTS

A gang of basketballers under the management of Donald "Tony" Goeller, drubbed the team from the local Methodist church, under Manager Dwight Steele Tuesday evening by the score of 12 to 4. Frank for the Goellerites scored high with three field goals and Beck and Davis each scored the two goals of the losers. The game was played in the C. A. C. gym.

A lot of farmers are just sitting and thinking these days, and lambasting Congress, instead of getting their machinery out of the weather and overhauling it.

Business, like the day's work, usually registers the way people are feeling.

The people who were sure stocks would never come down again are now doubtful whether they'll ever go up again.

Why Few Are Fat

Excess fat has been disappearing fast in late years. So fast that excess is the exception now. You see that in every circle.

That change is largely due to the discovery that excess fat is largely the result of a gland weakness. A gland whose secretion helps turn food to fuel. So modern physicians, in treating obesity, seek to combat this cause.

Their method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 22 years—millions of boxes of them. Now almost everyone has slender friends to show them the results.

Go do what they did—try Marmola. All druggists supply it at $1 a box, and a book in each box tells you how and why it acts.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may need to be treated. You can stop them with Creomulsion, an emulsion of cod liver oil. It soothes and breaks the inflamed membranes and kills the germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recommended by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agents for coughs from colds and bronchitis. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing agents.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, influenza and minor forms of bronchitis, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

TIGERS HAVE ONE OF YEAR'S BEST WORKOUTS WEDNESDAY

After one of their best workouts of the season at the high school Wednesday evening, the Tiger varsity pronounced itself ready for the onslaughts of one of the best teams in the Central Buckeye league, Bexley. The game will be played in the local gymnasium Friday evening and if good practice sessions mean anything, the Bexley crew is going to face a team that will look quite different than it did against Grandview last Friday, in one of the most disappointing games of the current season.

Passing like they haven't passed this year, shooting baskets from every angle and displaying fine teamwork with each member encouraging his mate, the Red and Black showed the stuff that all good basketball teams are made of in their lengthy Wednesday evening workout.

SHORT SESSION THURSDAY

A light play drill is on the books for this evening. Every member of the squad is in excellent condition and with these factors in their favor, the Tigers will enter the Bexley game, with their hearts and minds set on just one thing, VICTORY.

The team is expected to lineup just as it has since the Chillicothe game, with Nickerson and White at the forwards, Russell at center, and Davis and Clark at guards.

The boys' game is not the only feature of the evening for Miss Rains' girls take on a worthy opponent in quest of another victory. The opponent is none other than the Lancaster lassies and advance reports say that Lancaster will truly test the strength of the so-far undefeated Tigerette sextet.

SCRAMBLE FOR JOBS

Four positions on the varsity are certain with Fitzpatrick and Eldridge at forwards and Captain Peters and Hitler at centers.

But the guard posts are very unsettled. Last week Ritt and Betts started at the defensive posts with Riegel substituting early in the game. The scramble for the guard jobs has been decidedly hot all through the week with not even the girls themselves certain who will get the call.

The reserve game between the local Reserves and the Bexley Reserves was cancelled by Principal Gephart Wednesday.

The girls' game will start at 7:15.

Jake Snouffer will be the referee.

BOMBS FLY IN CHICAGO AREA

Sixth Missile In Day Injures 13 and Does Over $100,000 Damage.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30.—The sixth bomb in 24 hours burst here today with a roar heard for miles, injured 13 persons and caused damage estimated at more than $100,000.

The injured were cut by flying glass and showering debris; others were hurled to the ground by the force of the explosion.

So powerful was the blast that the two-story grocery of John Culotta, at whom the blast was aimed, flew into the air and settled with a terrific crash. No one was in the building at the time. The bomb was the most powerful exploded in Chicago in years.

Extortionists were blamed by police for the attack. Culotta had received five letters from Black Hand workers demanding $5,000. He ignored the demands and notified police who maintained a guard over the grocery yesterday.

The building was wrecked by a mysterious fire last December and was later repaired. Culotta blamed extortionists for that attack.

PROMISE ACTION IN C. A. C. GAMES THURSDAY EVENING

Brotherhood vs. Kingston. Grant's Clouds vs. Gordon Tires. C. A. C. vs. Lancaster.

That's the lineup for the Circleville Athletic Club gyanasium Thursday evening, and what a trio of court contests these three should make.

The first is scheduled to start at 7:15 p. m. when Joe Noecker's Lutherans trot onto the court with nothing but intentions of drubbing the Kingston Merchants and drubbing them soundly. The Lutherans are about ready for a mighty good game for their last few have been only ordinary and with Marvin Rhodes failing to hit the net in his usual sensational style, the Brotherhood quintet has been very heavily pressed for victory. But that good game is just about ready to come out and tonight might be that particular time.

The Kingston club will furnish plenty of opposition.

GORDONS, CLOUDS

The next game of the evening will introduce the Gordon Tires in one corner and the Grant Flying Clouds in the other. SCENES FROM "PIGS"

Junior, eighteen years young, is surely meant to be a veterinary. He believes that "practice makes perfect" so the Atkins place was always overrun with sick dogs, cats, chickens, and what not, including the goat that butted Grandma down the back steps. He discovered a scheme to make his talent yield big profits, but has a hard time convincing the family, and well—see the play.

Mildred has a nose for news. And what that child doesn't hear is not worth repeating. And what she does hear keeps everybody around her in hot water. And she loves Junior.

Ellen is just any harassed mother with the understanding and sympathy characteristic of this noble army.

And Grandma, dead as a post, funny as a crutch, who loves her gossip but, "would hate to face her Maker with sixteen dollars and fifty cents on her soul," when you see the play you can see why. Hear her play the radio—it's a broadcast of bows.

The cast includes some well-known concert and entertainment artists whose quite exceptional talents along these lines are worked into the play itself and between the acts.

If you like a good laugh, don't mind a little tug at your heart strings and want to forget care and worry, the prescription is, go to see "Pigs."
